A black and white photograph of a modern, multi-story building. The building has a distinctive vertical tower section on the left side, which appears to be a chimney or a ventilation stack. The main body of the building is composed of several rectangular blocks with a grid-like facade. Large windows are visible on the right side of the building. In the foreground, a utility pole with several wires is visible, partially obscuring the view of the building. The sky is clear and light-colored.
